C. P. R. HAS LARGE PLANS

President Shaughnessy Speaks of Western Construction

Montreal, Mar. 21.—Speaking of the future of the C.P.R. before sailing for Europe Sir Thomas Shaughnessy said that much construction work is being carried on west of Lake Superior. The new Wolsley Weaton line was being pushed forward as rapidly as possible and grain would be hauled over it this fall. The Phasant hills extension is constructed as far as Strassburg and will be extended through Saskatoon and on to the junction with the Wetaskiwin branch on the Calgary and Edmonton railway giving another through line between Winnipeg and Edmonton. The line north of Strassburg would be joined from the east by the North-western Railway from Carleton Place. This branch will be joined by the one from Lacombe on the Calgary and Edmonton Railway, and will be a great highway to Winnipeg. Forty miles of the North-western will be built this year.

LARGER IMMIGRATION BONUS.
London, Mar. 16.—Lord Strathcona has been notified by the Minister of the Interior of a change of immigration bonus. Hitherto the bonus payable to persons over 16 years has been 7s. After April 1st, the bonus to be paid for tickets sold to farmers, farm laborers, gardeners, stablemen, carters, railway section men, navies, and miners, who intend to follow agricultural pursuits in Canada, and female domestic servants, a bonus of 11 will be paid on such persons over 16 years and 12s. for those under 16. The bonus will not apply to steamship companies landing immigrants for Canada at United States ports.

ONTARIO PEOPLE CALLED.
Toronto, Mar. 20.—There were a number of sudden deaths in Ontario yesterday. Robt. H. Hewett, of Newmarket, died suddenly of heart failure. Ald. Thos. Kelly, of Peterboro, died. Thos. W. Butler, governor of Norfolk county jail, died at Simcoe, aged 62 years.

WILL RELIEVE OVER-CROWDING

Arrangements Will be Made by the Council to Provide Accommodation for Incoming Settlers

Chas. Sutter, immigration agent for the Dominion Government, addressed the council last night with regard to the lack of accommodation in the city to house the incoming settlers. He said that there were coming into the country at the present time more settlers than during any year in his previous experience. The greater number of these, he said, were people who wanted and demanded good accommodation, but were unable to find it anywhere in the city. He had at the present time a large number of people, who would under no circumstances be in such a place as the immigration hall if they could find other accommodation. Calgary was trying to head off the settlers by telling them that there was no accommodation here and that they would have to sleep outside. Calgary was doing everything in the power of the citizens to furnish people there with accommodation. Every house in town had been carefully canvassed and every available room placed at the disposal of incoming settlers, while Edmonton, on the other hand, was doing nothing. It looked bad, he said for the city of Edmonton. On Saturday night he had to go out at a late hour and buy 300 pairs of blankets for newcomers who had to sleep on the floor of the immigration hall, and some even had to sleep on the floor at the police station. Mr. Sutter said he believed that the rush had scarcely commenced and that in a few days the overcrowding would be something terrible, unless something was done by the city. He suggested that the city should lease some premises, such as the Great West Impement Co's warehouse, and fix it up for temporary quarters, or make some arrangements to accommodate the rush.

The mayor said that he had intended to bring the matter up himself. He suggested that a committee be appointed to find and furnish temporary quarters of some kind and that the Dominion and Provincial Governments be approached and asked to bear a part of the expense. On motion, Alds. Smith and Latta were appointed an immigration committee to take the matter up and immediately proceed to arrange for some temporary quarters.

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS CONTINUED IN LEGISLATURE

Premier Replies to the Leader of the Opposition—Member for Rosebud Introduces Lengthy Amendment—Attorney General and Minister of Public Works Participate in the Debate

Yesterday's session of the Alberta legislature was taken up with the consideration and debate on the speech from the throne. Premier Rutherford opened the debate in a well considered speech in which he plainly outlined the policy of the Government. Cornelius Hiebert, of the opposition, followed with an address which showed that he was by no means unfamiliar with the practice of oratory and that he knew his case thoroughly. Attorney-General Cross, followed with a masterly address, and he in turn was followed by W. H. Cushing in a defence of the public works department against the attacks of the Conservative party. Mr. Robertson, of High River, closed the debate by speaking a second time in the Conservative interest.

Nine bills were introduced as follows:
By W. H. Cushing, re local improvements.
By W. T. Finlay re department of agriculture.
By W. H. Cushing re villages.
By C. W. Cross re notaries public.

THE PREMIER

By W. T. Finlay re department provincial secretary.
By C. W. Cross re commissioners to administer oaths.
By C. W. Cross re police magistrates and justices of the peace.
By C. W. Cross re clerks and deputy clerks.

At this afternoon's session a continuation of the debate on the speech from the throne will be taken up. Premier Rutherford opened the debate by speaking on the motion of Mr. Stuart in reply to the speech. He congratulated the member from Gleichen on his able address, and the member from Lacombe on his address in accordance with the motion, and said that he felt that he should congratulate the member from High River on his address and also on his elevation to the position of leader. He took exception of course, to some of the points made by leader of the Opposition, but he wished to point out that the most serious objections of the leader of the Opposition was to what he termed omissions.

The member for High River mentioned the Hudson's Bay Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway exemptions as among these omissions. He considered that the Hudson's Bay Railway was a work which would be of enormous advantage to these western provinces and he wanted to point out that the Government was doing all in its power to obtain information re the feasibility of such a railway and although there was so far nothing to show that Hudson's Bay was navigable for more than five months out of the year, as soon as they had this information which would prove the proposition practicable they would undertake to make arrangements with the sister provinces for such a railway. He desired, however, to point out that the Canadian Northern Railway was undertaking such a road at the present time and that the Federal Government was extending its assistance to the project. It was also the sister province of Saskatchewan.

Regarding the Canadian Pacific Railway exemptions he said that the Government was undertaking negotiations regarding these exemptions and if it was found that the exemptions were in such position as to be not amenable to legislative enactment, that it was to be expected that a bill covering the case would be introduced at the second session of the House.

Regarding the late elections in respect of which the leader of the Opposition made certain statements, the Premier said that he had found in his experience that the victory was well earned and was the duty of the present Government. As regards the statement that the machinery of Government was used to influence elections he had found that many of the servants of the old Territorial Government were very active against them.

The misrepresentations of which the Opposition complained of, he believed were largely on the other side, that the misrepresentations were made by the Opposition and not by the Government.

He reaffirmed his belief in the school law as enacted.
As for the undue use of the Public Works Department, as complained of, he said that since the present Government had taken possession in September that they had tried to give the country a business Government and that they had only undertaken the construction of roads and bridges where such were necessary.

As for the all important question of the capital, he said that he thought that should be properly left to the members of this house and that their conclusions on the matter should be final. Personally he was willing to abide by the will of the members.

Taking up the speech from the Throne he said that it was the duty of the Government to carry out the will of the people in so far as it was within their power to do so; he thought that the Government would undertake the construction of roads and bridges wherever necessary and that they would look after the formation of school districts as rapidly as necessary. It was a source of gratification to him, he said, to see that such a good class of settlers were coming into the country.

Speaking of the visit of Prince Arthur of Connaught, he said that it was coming at an opportune time and would help to strengthen the bonds of empire.

On the dairy question he said that the Government, as a part of its duty, had taken over the butter factories from the Dominion Government and proposed to continue operating them. There demands, he said, for the establishment of other factories of the same kind and he thought the Government would do what lay in its power to meet these demands. The intention of the Government was to urge the agricultural industries as fully as it could. In this connection he mentioned the beet sugar industry as one that was entitled to encouragement but he thought that the subsidies, if any were given, should not be to the manufacturers alone, but that the farmers should be remembered.

The beet sugar factory already established in Southern Alberta had been the means of distributing a large amount of money among the farmers of that section and it was an industry peculiarly suited to this country. The question of the distribution of the subsidies, however, was a matter which should have very careful consideration as the farmers who grow the beets must be recognized, and the money not all given to the factory.

The Premier stated that a large amount of business was to come before the House which would entail a great deal of work and that the Government was doing its part to get this legislation through without delay, as witness the fact that five bills had been introduced yesterday and nine today.

C. HIEBERT, M.P.P.

Mr. Hiebert, in rising to reply to the premier said that although the late election had turned out in such a way that there were only two Conservatives

TIME LIMIT PREVENTS VOTE

Ald. Bellamy and Picard Refused to Allow an Extension at Last Night's Meeting

The early closing movement shelved the city engineer question again last night, and the gabble of much talk and little business was all there was worthy of record at yesterday evening's council meeting. Commissioner Kinnaird was loaded for the emergency. He had a pile of communications, reports and petitions ready for the aldermen when the engagement opened, which he fired at them in slow order to consume the flying moments, while Alderman Bellamy and Picard found subjects for voluminous debate in the design and size of street numbers, the question of whether the rink should be leased to the Liberal club for one evening, and other matters of equal national interest. Meantime Aldermen Mays and Latta, who wanted to get along to where they could put the other aldermen who were absent at the last meeting on record on the city engineer business, fledged and tried to hurry things along, but by their very anxiety defeated their own ends, as every time they endeavored to jam through any bill before the house and clear the boards they merely shook down another cloud-burst of words and the aldermen with the load on their minds floundered through a mire of verbosity—while time went on, which is a way time has, even at the city hall.

Meanwhile the city engineer sat at the head of the table, complacent and smiling as the Sphinx, secure in the possession of about a thousand yards of blue prints, reports, the consideration of which would probably take a week, and if these were side-tracked, "Jack" Kinnaird stood ready, axe ready, with the address to Prince Arthur which he was just as likely to read as not, if they let him go at it.

Finally when 11 p.m., the time limit called for by the constitution and charter of Edmonton, was reached, and it was a case of borrowing a piece out

WOULD LIMIT SENATE TERM

Perth Member Wants Fifteen Year
Limit on Senatorship

Ottawa, Mar. 20.—Mr. McIntyre, M. P., Perth, has given notice of a resolution asking that the constitution of the Senate be brought into greater accord with spirit of representative and popular government and the genius of the Canadian people by abolishing the life tenure of the office of Senator and limiting the tenure for one appointment to the legal term of three parliaments and to provide an age limit not exceeding eighty years for compulsory retirement.

SETTLERS BY THE TRAIN LOAD.
(Montreal Press News)
Five trains arrived from the east today over the Canadian Pacific Railway. The first to reach the city was an early one, the train pulling in about 7 a.m. Very few of the passengers remained in the city. Three extra coaches were attached to the Calgary express and almost all who came in were taken west on this train. Most of the strangers were from the British Isles, and were destined to Calgary and Edmonton.

The regular daily train from the east will arrive in two sections at 5.30 and 5.50 p.m. and will bring in a party of European colonists in addition to the usual traffic. Very heavy trains are expected, many Ontario and Maritime Province passengers coming west on the regular.

The chief interest of the day will attach to the arrival of the homesteaders at 8 o'clock tonight. Accurate information regarding the number of people on board these trains could not be secured locally. It was announced, however, that both trains were carrying from twelve to fifteen coaches and that every coach held its full quota of passengers. It is estimated that about 800 people will arrive in the city on this train. The homesteaders come from every portion of the east, many coming from Ontario and the Maritime Provinces. One or two coaches are devoted to French Canadians from Quebec, who will be distributed through the many French settlements and colonies of the west. The regular train will go west on time tonight and will be followed by two specials which will carry west a large proportion of the homesteaders. The new coaches will locate for the most part along the main line from Moose Jaw to Calgary and along the C. & N. from Calgary to Edmonton. The large party of English people who went west this morning went through to Calgary.

DEPARTMENT FIGURES CORRECT
In the Calgary Herald of March 18th appears a statement made by I. N. Strong, manager of the Alberta Pacific Elevator Co., to the effect that the figures of the output of fall wheat in Alberta contained in the crop bulletin recently issued by the Department of Agriculture are incorrect. "The farmer in a new country," he said, "saved a good deal of his grain for seed purposes, not only for himself, but for two or three new comers." He judged that two-thirds of the fall crop last year were still in the hands of the farmers, and that the actual output was really 2,000,000 bushels. The figures given by the department, which showed an output of something less than 700,000, he said involved merely the returns from the elevators. The department emphatically denies this statement of Mr. Strong's. The department received their returns direct from the threshers and as nearly every thresher in the province sent in returns the figures are bound to be as nearly correct as possible. The department's figures show the output in 1935 to be 82,418 bushels, in 1934, 152,125 bushels, and in 1935 the output was 689,919 bushels.

SENATORIAL REPRESENTATION
"Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are more highly favored than British Columbia, which is limited to three members in the upper chamber. The Pacific coast province ought to have four immediately like the other western provinces, but it cannot have its number increased until there is imperial legislation. There is, however, a larger view to take of ultimate senatorial representation, and I do not know why it should not be pressed. The west in point of population is entitled to as many senators as the three maritime provinces, which as a senatorial district has twenty-four representatives, while in respect to area or interests or legislation required there can be no doubt of its paramount importance."

"I believe the west should be constituted into a senatorial district, having twenty-four members, which would be six for each of the four provinces. The only objection to that would be that the west is growing so fast that there will undoubtedly be in another ten years or so substantial reasons for the creation of two senatorial districts instead of one. That might make the senate too large, but would it not be better to have a few more than are actually required than that there should be a preponderant number from what some day will cease to be numerically the larger part of the Dominion. If there is any objection to increasing the number of senators to the extent that the two new senatorial districts, or even one, would involve, and there would be, then it will be necessary to find a plan whereby an equality of provincial representation would be maintained without having too many representatives. But in the meantime British Columbia thinks there should be a little evening up and that she should be allotted four as the other sister provinces have that number."

LIVELY TOWN ON THE C. N. R.

Mannville is Building Up Rapidly—
 Settlers Pouring Into the District

(Contributed)

During the last week there has been six car loads of settlers' effects unloaded at Mannville, most of them taking the trail for the Battle River country, and a few being headed for the north. There is a considerable amount of good land still to be homesteaded between the Vermillion and Saskatchewan rivers, which land hunters would do well to look over.

Work on the hotel is progressing rapidly, and two more weeks will see it completed. Accommodation is badly needed for the travelling public.

A contract has been let to dig a public well in the centre of the town. At present water is hauled nearly half a mile from a small lake.

Building operations have commenced on an implement shed, 30 by 40 feet, for D. H. McLean, who is agent for the Ewing machinery. Everything points to a most successful year in the machinery business. Mr. McLean, the wholesaler, will probably move the post office down to the new town during the week.

It is rumored that a sub agency for the Dominion Land Office will be established here soon. This will relieve landseekers from the necessity of going forty-five miles to Vegreville to file.

A man from Nebraska is going to sow alfalfa extensively this year. He claims three crops can be taken off each year, and anticipates no difficulty in making it grow.

A superior grade of brick clay has been found two miles north of Mannville. The owner is in correspondence with two brick manufacturers, relative to putting in a brick yard.

Snow and ice still lie four inches deep on the level, and indications are that the sleighing will last some time yet.

WILL HE DO IT?

(Regina Standard)

Like begets like. Bitter things have been said, pitiless things done in the first half-year of Saskatchewan's history as a province. In behalf of the Liberal party it can be truthfully said that up to December 13 no word was said, no intimation made, no act done, beyond what was legitimate and fair in a political campaign. All that Liberal speakers and papers said bore directly upon the political issues. If the anti-Liberals had been content to cease their mean personal attacks after December 13, Liberal speakers and papers would not now have to regret none of the bitter things which they have been taunted into saying since the 13th of December. The Leader cannot confess that it has said a word which it is not prepared to prove, but will confess that it has said words which we will not be able to review hereafter without shame. And whose is the blame? There is a Persian proverb which says that—From one indiscreet person in an assembly a host of prudent may get hurt; and if they fill a cistern to the brim with rose-water and let a dog fall into it, the whole will be contaminated. Who is the dog that is contaminating the cistern of Saskatchewan politics? And how is the cistern to be cleaned? Can Mr. Haultain take a hint? He need have no fear of the Liberal party ever using Mellins against him. Walter Scott said last Friday upon oath that in October last he would have feared the public effect of a publicly renewed political alliance between him and Mellins, which was true. In August, 1905, Messrs. Scott, Calder, Bullye, Geo. W. Brown and Senator Ross, debated the position of Mr. Mellins and the Standard who was at that period palpably on the fence inviting a bid from either party, and altogether and unanimously they concluded that while the position of Mellins and the Standard might be damaging, their support would be more damaging and dangerous. Walter Scott has since declared that no political party can or will ever contain himself and John Kenneth Mellins. Mr. Haultain knows that Walter Scott is a man who keeps his word to friend and foe. An enemy of the Haultain party might well wish Mellins to remain the head of the Haultain political organization if more success were the highest consideration. But no well wisher of Saskatchewan can desire to see the position of the Progressives to guide and dominate his party has made of our politics since October last. The first step towards cleaning the cistern must be the removal of the dog. Walter Scott completed his share of the task on Saturday before a judge and jury in the Supreme Court. The balance of the task remains for Mr. Haultain. Will he prove equal to the opportunity, or will he continue the weak blundering, stupid course which has been his without a break since the fatal Moose Jaw convention of 1903?

LOCATING NEW LINE

Winnipeg Free Press: Thom, Turnbull assistant chief engineer of the Canadian Northern Railway returned last night from an official visit to the survey party which has been running a try line on the Pas Mission on the Saskatchewan in a northeasterly direction towards Hudson's Bay. The survey party was in charge of A. W. Gustee and consisted of about fourteen men. Mr. Turnbull said that the survey party had been working from the Pas Mission since about January 1st. They had located a try line for 75 miles. Work had been suspended owing to the great depth of the snow. The country through which the line was surveyed was slightly wooded and of fairly level character. No topographical difficulties of a serious character had been met with to the present. The construction of a railway line was quite feasible as far as the survey had gone. Operations could not be resumed until the spring, about the 1st of May, were again open. Mr. Turnbull could not say when the work would be resumed. He could not say if it was the intention of the Canadian Northern Co. to establish a line to Hudson's Bay in the near future. He simply knew that as far as the survey had gone railway construction was comparatively simple. Mr. Turnbull was absent on the trip of inspection for a period of three weeks. There were six families of whites at the Pas Mission, and north of that there were none. There were isolated Indians here and there in the northern region. The Pas Mission is situated on the banks of the Saskatchewan at a point some 96 miles northeast of Erwood, one of the most northerly points on the C.N.R. system. The end of the survey is therefore about 170 miles from the border of civilization.

In this connection a St. Paul despatch says: Traffic Manager Shaw, of the Canadian Northern, who was in St. Paul today, said the line to Hudson's Bay would positively be built. "We intend to construct the first link this year," he said, "by running the extension of Prince Albert branch to the Pas. Next year probably the extension will go through to Fort Churchill on Hudson's Bay." The general belief is that the Canadian Northern is associated with the Hudson's Bay project.

THE LEGISLATURE

The high reputation as a speaker enjoyed by the member for Gleichen was splendidly sustained by his effort on Monday in moving the address in reply to the speech from the throne. The unique importance of the occasion while broadening immensely the wide opportunity always confronting the member to whom such honor falls, increased proportionately the difficulties of the task. But the member for Gleichen rose to the occasion and met the opportunity in a speech not more notable for excellence of diction than for breadth of view combined with discernment and splendor of thought. The starting of the governmental machinery of the new Province made necessary a reference to the completion of the arch of confederation by the establishment of the new Provinces, the assembly of the first Legislature invited a review of the commercial and political development of the west, the ceremony at which the speech from the throne was delivered recalled the slow evolution of the system of British constitutional government. These and many more avenues of thought presented themselves and the speaker accomplished not less in choosing which of these it were best to follow than in gracefully wording his thoughts on the phases to which he gave utterance.

The member for High River solved the mooted question of the leadership of the Opposition by rising to reply to the speeches of the mover and seconder of the address in reply to the speech from the throne and referring to the position "which fate had cast at his feet." On the whole Mr. Robertson made a very creditable speech. Attempting no rhetorical flight he asked the indulgence of the House toward a member making his maiden speech. While he concurred in the congratulations over the prosperity of the country he took the opportunity to say that the Government had not yet been long enough in power to lay claim to having created all this prosperity and more would probably be heard along this line a year hence. It was the omission from the speech from the throne which damped this admiration and aroused his criticism. He blamed the Government for not having forecast their policy on the telephone question, for not including a reference to the Hudson Bay Railway, C.P.R. exemption and the capital question and gave the general impression that he considered the bill of fare too meagre for the appetites of the Legislators. That the first session of the House might reasonably be supposed to be occupied primarily with getting the Provincial machinery in running condition rather than undertaking new enterprise, and that the program outlined made provision for such while by no means ignoring the latter opportunity the speaker refrained from mentioning. Referring to the elections he took the somewhat unusual stand that the elections in November had not been the expression of popular opinion. The people had been tampered with. Federal influence had been brought to bear on them and in many instances there had been misrepresentation of the school question. The member for Red Deer concurred in the latter view, expressed his concurrence in an approving "hear, hear" and brought down the House with the joke of the sitting. The Opposition leader produced again the argument of the Toronto News that the school system of the new Province was the thin end of the wedge which divided Canada into three sections thus proving that the legislator from High River had never split rails. Had he done so the impossibility of accomplishing tri-section with one wedge would have discounted the authority even the Toronto News. For the school system of Alberta he evinced a dislike which was not more complimentary to the people who created and approved that system than the contention that they had been coerced or coerced into so doing by Federal interference.

THE SLOGAN

The Mail and Empire signalizes the opening of the Federal Parliament by an assault on the construction of the Government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific which it characterizes as the "Program of a Great Blunder." Curiously enough the Mail and Empire is moved to pathetic lamentation over the delay in letting the contracts for an enterprise to the destruction of which it has devoted and is devoting itself and introduces its condemnation of the "Great Blunder" with a paragraph of censure that the "Blunder" has not been undertaken more speedily. Quite equal in the subsequent performance in which the Mail and Empire juggles itself into the contention that the section from Winnipeg to the Port William Junction will cost $16,000,000, will occupy ten years in building and will be operated by the Grand Trunk Pacific for twenty years for nothing. All that the Mail and Empire has said we have heard before, presented with quite as fallacious logic, in quite as intemperate language and quite as hostile spirit. To the discussion of the question the latest attack contributes nothing beyond a few novelties in fictional mathematics and the significance of the circumstances under which it is made. Published under other circumstances the article might be taken merely as another eruption of the underlying hostility to the National Transcontinental which smoulders in the policy of the Mail and Empire; published in the opening days of the session, the article may be designed either as the signal or the incentive to another Parliamentary campaign against the project. Such campaigns are to be expected at this and each succeeding session during the accomplishment of the enterprise for the motives which engendered the Opposition fury against the project are motives which do not die, but which will become the more plentiful and more potent as the project approaches the condition in which it can meet the ends for which it was designed in freeing the west from the commercial thrall in which it has been held by the C.P.R. For the opening of such campaign the Mail and Empire has raised the slogan.

THE INTERCOLONIAL

In presenting his annual report on the Intercolonial Hon. H. R. Emmerson, Minister of Railways very effectively exploited the fabrication of a section of the Opposition press that the Federal Government was contemplating the sale of this railway to a private corporation. This cunningly devised fable was coined about a year since thrived luxuriantly on the vain imaginations of those Conservative journals which seek evidence against the Government in their own categories of the foolish things they would like to see the Government do. This invention was finally put out of commission by Mr. Emmerson.

The Toronto Globe gives the following report of the manner in which the Minister of Railways dealt with the question.

On motion to go into committee of supply on the railway estimates, Hon. Mr. Emmerson, in undertaking a lengthy explanation of the Intercolonial finances, said that on June 30 last was 26,691 miles and 793 miles of electric railways were in operation. The revenue of the Intercolonial for the fiscal year 1934 was $3,319,221, and for 1935, $4,783,221, of which $2,921,568 was for passenger traffic in 1934, and $2,105,896 in 1935. The cost of operation was $1,235,932 in 1934, and $1,588,826 in 1935, so that the deficit last year was $1,725,363, compared with $960,759 in the preceding year. This large deficit was due to several large increases in expenditures, including maintenance of way, $257,105, and handling snow, $132,909. Then there were rebates of freight on hay carried to Prince Edward Island to relieve a famine, amounting to $125,955.

"By what authority was that done?" asked Mr. Haggart.

"By order in council," Mr. Emmerson replied. It is not the first time this has been done. An order in council was passed a few days ago authorizing a refund of freight of coal from Nova Scotia to the municipalities in the western provinces at the time of the coal strike.

Mr. Emmerson said he was frank to admit that the deficit of last year was sufficient to appal the public mind of Canada, and it had been the subject of criticism wherever a printing press revolved in Canada, from the Pacific to where the waves of the Atlantic rolled in from Ireland. (Opposition laughter.) He desired fair play in the discussion. A letter from Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was read regarding the methods of charging to capital account on the C.P.R., which the minister said was the same as on the Intercolonial. Sir George Carter and Sir John Macdonald were quoted to show the object of building the I. C. R. was as a national bond, and not as a commercial highway. Three-quarters of the traffic upon it was easterly, and one-quarter westerly. The Canada's were nothing but deficit creators, and large sums had been given to the C. P. R., the Grand Trunk and other railways, and to Quebec, Montreal and other harbors, to promote trade and commerce. Then why pick out the Intercolonial and be silent on other expenditures? The total expenditure on the Intercolonial since confederation had been $55,361,474, and on the Prince Edward Island Railway $6,719,529, while on the Canada there was an annual deficit of $1,174,000. Why did the Intercolonial not pay? There were three causes: The long route for political, imperial and military reasons; water competition and low rates. In the interest of the development of the coal and steel industries of Nova Scotia the rates to Montreal were extraordinarily low, and special inducements were given to secure traffic for winter and summer. On coal the rate was 22 cents per ton per mile, the lowest on the continent, and on flour going east to build up interprovincial trade the rate was one-fourth cent per ton per mile. "We have to wrestle with geography any time we attempt to stimulate this business," declared Mr. Emmerson. "The Intercolonial was made the back-bone for all these things, such as carrying hay for Prince Edward Island in the time of famine. They had to accommodate their rates to meet those on the C. P. R. short line, and that cost the country er favors given the C. P. R. Freight rates on the Intercolonial railway were only about 61 per cent of the rates on other lines, and passenger rates about two-thirds of what the Grand Trunk collects.

As a result of more favorable conditions and reforms introduced, the showing for six months of the current fiscal year had been exceedingly encouraging. Working expenses had decreased $178,789 and revenue had increased $212,696 over the same period in the previous year, making a total improvement of $411,485, the deficit being only $11,259, compared with $482,755 in 1935. Among the reforms being made as a result of his close inspection were increases in passenger and freight rates, and better co-operation of officials. "They talk about a railway commission," said Mr. Emmerson. "I want no better expert commission than the Deputy Minister, who has been aiding me in the past six months." There was to a certain extent political influence, but he ventured to say that the management of the C. P. R. was as much subject to the influence of members of Parliament as he was in the management of the I. C. R. Rumors were sometimes heard of the sale of the Intercolonial. "The Government of Canada," said Mr. Emmerson, "as now constituted, have no intention of disposing of the Intercolonial, and they are determined to maintain it in its entirety as a portion of the transportation system of Canada, in its present status, but they are equally determined it shall be a paying asset of Canada." Mr. Emmerson had no sympathy with the idea of putting the railway under a commission. Comparison had sometimes been made with the Transatlantic Railway Commission, but that was political, as the members had all been changed on the change of Government last year. "This sort of putting the I. C. R. in the hands of a commission in order to escape politics is simply a spurious argument, and one that does not answer the question relating to the Intercolonial," said the Minister of Railways. A commission to be free from political influence would have to be autocratic, and that was alien to the spirit of responsible government. Would the shareholders or directors of a railway place the management of their line in the hands of one man for a period of time? Forbid the thought, they would say.

Mr. Emmerson closed his two-hour speech with the expression of the hope that "he would ere long be able to say the Intercolonial was on a paying basis."

ected and the Government had received an overwhelming majority, a very important duty devolved on the opposition.

He was more than pleased, he said, that every suggestion made by the leader of his side of the House, had been taken up and dealt with and apparently that he accepted in toto the suggestions made by this side of the House.

"We heard yesterday," he said, "from the member from Gleichen, 'that the provinces had received complete autonomy. I contend that we did not, and I propose to show how.' Continuing, he said that the province of Alberta, as one of three out of the nine provinces, had been deprived of its lands, its minerals and its timber. If we are to have autonomy we must have the same rights and privileges as the other provinces and as long as the Dominion Government deprives one province of any rights it cannot be said that complete autonomy exists."

If one of us as a citizen of Alberta, wants the right to develop the fishing resources, or any other resource, we have to go to Ottawa, where we may or may not receive the Privy Council's approval."

When the member for Gleichen says we are given complete provincial autonomy, what about the $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 worth of land which is being withheld from taxation? When the Government forms themselves into local improvement districts and commence to build roads, they find that there is one side that cannot be taxed because it belongs to the C. P. R. and another section to the other side that belongs to the Dominion Government and the local improvement district is treated as a remittance man, having to go to Ottawa for the money to build the road."

In the speech from the throne, he said, the government intimated its intention to pass some legislation pertaining to mining. He said that the Dominion Government, by the autonomy bill, collected ten cents a ton royalty from the coal, and if the Government of Alberta undertook the proposed legislation it was for the benefit of the Dominion Government at the expense of the province.

Another point which agitated the minds of the people both before the election and since, was the permanent location of the capital. He was surprised to hear from the member from Strathcona that the question was going to be submitted to the House. This was not a measure to be submitted to the House. The autonomy bill, which was called "good," says that the capital shall be in Edmonton until the Lieutenant-Governor in council orders otherwise. Was the Government going to shirk its responsibility? Was it going to make this a question for the House to settle when it should be a Government measure, that it had to come begging to the members of the House to settle the question.

In regard to education, we could only do two things—we could establish a separate school or we could establish a public school? Why should we not be allowed to establish one school and one school only, for all classes, rich and poor, whether he be Jew or Gentile; whether he be British or American or Russian, we should be able to say that every citizen should be treated alike.

"I hold," he said, "that it is a very grave encroachment on the rights of this province for the Dominion Government to take over school affairs out of our hands, and say that we shall for all time be restricted to these two tion, laid down their policy on the school question. Shortly after the Conservative party met at Red Deer and the policy which they outlined was that the clauses of the Autonomy bill which related to the school question should be submitted to the privy council for interpretation. With this the member for High River disagreed, stating that he did not find any particular fault with the school clauses. But the candidate for Sturgeon and the candidate for Edmonton each held separate and divergent views, and so the Conservative party went to the country with a multiplicity of policies on the question.

The member for High River, he said, favored the use of the phrase "National school system," attempting to gain the sympathy of the American settlers by having it appear that we have not a national school system. "I maintain that we have a national school," he said, "and in the highest form." He challenged the leader of the Opposition to show where any priest or any sectarian preacher was allowed to teach in any school; the religion in schools whatever it was, was merely a matter of the education—not a matter of education itself.

Regarding the capital question, the Liberal party at the Calgary convention had laid down that the public buildings would be built at the point best suited to serve the public demands. The premier had stated on the public platform that the selection of the capital would be left to the House.

He stated that the Conservative party had adopted exactly the same policy, and to prove his words he read clause 11 of the Conservative platform, adopted at the Red Deer convention. The Conservative party had evidently forgotten that part of its platform, the member for Gleichen spoke of the Hudson Bay route. The Liberal platform adopted at Calgary said that the earliest possible steps should be taken to secure joint action to find out the feasibility of the Hudson Bay route. That was the policy of the Liberal party and that was the policy of the government in power. When the member for Gleichen said that the Liberal party had pledged themselves to build the Hudson Bay railway he apparently was confusing the Liberal platform with the Conservative platform. It was the Conservatives who pledged themselves to build the Hudson Bay railway, but apparently the people did not take them at their word.

The leader of the Opposition, said the Attorney-General, made some insinuations as to the way the elections were carried out. He challenged the member for High River or any Conservative to point out one instance where any polling clerk or any returning officer did otherwise than his duty. Coming back to the question of the capital, he said that the stand of the Government was a very fair one. The Government did not ask its members to take a united stand, but to vote as they saw fit for whatever locality they considered best.

W. H. Cashin, Minister of Public Works took up the defence of his department, with regard to the statements of the Conservative member that the Public Works Department had been unduly active in the recent elections, the member for High River, he said, had complained that the department had undertaken works in his constituency, the expenditure of large sums of money for the purpose of influencing the election. A similar statement had been made in Calgary at the time of the election, but that statement was challenged, but that statement was never proven.

He had the honor of the appointment to the position which he now held as the head of the department of public works early in the month of September. It was a difficult position to fill and he realized the magnitude of the work when he undertook it. He had tried conscientiously to carry out the duties of the department. They found owing to the season of the year which they were in, that there was certain work that had to be carried on in a few months it would freeze and if the farmers were to be given roads on which to reach their market those would have to be built at once. It was in connection with the carrying out of this work that he was charged with having unduly influenced elections. As for the charge that particular attention had been paid to High River, he said there was a crew at work there before the elections were called and before even the affairs of the province had been turned over by the Territorial Government. Apart from this a few men were put to work on a stock-watering dam which had to be built at that time or go to ruin.

The Government, he said, had started business in good circumstances. It had always had plenty of money with which to carry on business and had it cared to use the Public Works Department in the way suggested, they had the money to do so. On the other hand they had restricted the expenditures until after the election, not caring to make large outlays until they had the endorsement of the people.

He said that the department had a very important work to undertake in supplying the great number of settlers who were coming into the country with roads and bridges, but the country was so large that he had not had time to familiarize himself with it. It would possibly take him a year; or maybe two years, but he hoped when the House met again that he would have a more definite policy to present to them from the public works department.

Mr. Robertson, of High River, rose to second the amendment of Mr. Herbert. He said that Attorney-General Cross had misunderstood him. He had not said that the Liberal party had pledged themselves to build the R. R. Railway. What he said was that there was an omission—that the Hudson Bay Railway had not been mentioned in the speech at all. He thought that the Government should appoint the promised commission.

Mr. Cross, he said, expressed some surprise that a Conservative member had contended for the taxation of the C. P. R. land. Our forefathers, he said, brave as they were, could not foresee the vast development of this country. Conditions had changed, and it might be possible that they were mistaken. He contended that the Dominion Government should compensate the province for the loss suffered by these exemptions, until the exemptions are disposed of.

On the capital question, he said that it was a Government measure, and that the Government, according to the Alberta act, must settle this question and accept the responsibility.

On the school question, he said that he had taken a very strong stand. His position was not in harmony with the school clauses of the Alberta act. He considered them the greatest injustice that had ever been forced upon a free and intelligent people.

The attorney-general had said that the school system which has been forced upon us was the best in Canada. He believed that it was the worst. Why should they be unalterably fastened to one system of education. He did not want to say anything to reflect on the Roman Catholic church, but he considered that the great break down in the school system was reached; that the Roman Catholic church had been singled out as the one denomination that should have the right to introduce its religion, under certain circumstances, into the schools. It may be, he said, that these schools were not being developed rapidly, but the bars were thrown open and the time was coming when they would. He thought that the time was coming when the people would rise up and throw off the yoke of slavery. Referring to the national school system of the United States, he said that they were building a great nation over there by having one national school, one language, and that the progress of the United States was largely due to their school system. The provincial schools, of which the attorney-general spoke, were not national schools, but were private schools.

Regarding the clauses of the autonomy bill which deprived the province of its lands, he wished to call attention to the attitude of the Government with regard to this phase of autonomy. Why should we come into confederation as a poor relation, as a remittance man? We are placed in the position of one being incapable of handling our own business; that it was safe to trust us with our own resources. The greatest foolhood, he said, did not live in the west, they live in the east, in Toronto and Montreal and other eastern centres, and he believed that these gentlemen, who were not national schools, but were private schools, were held at Ottawa.

FIRE IN A TUNNEL

New York, Mar. 20.—Fire amongst several hundred bales of hay and sawdust far down in the Pennsylvania railroad tunnel under East river today filled a section of the tube with suffocating smoke, and it was reported that one or two men had been overcome and lost their lives. The firemen were unable to combat the flames as it was found impossible to carry the hose to the scene of the fire without shutting off the compressed air locks.

AT THE FIRST SIGN OF "SPRING FEVER" you should take ABBEY'S SALT.

It is the only spring tonic used in thousands of homes to purify and enrich the blood—relieve that feeling of languor—and revitalize brain and body. Highly recommended by the medical profession. 25c and 60c.

A THANKLESS TASK.

(George Ade)

It may be set down as a safe proposition that every man is a bewildered maverick when he wanders out of his own little ballwick. Did you ever see a stock broker on a stock farm, or a cow puncher at the Waldorf?

A man may be a duck in his private puddle, but when he strikes deep and strange waters he forgets how to swim. Take some captain of industry who resides in a large city in the middle west. At home he is unquestionably it. Every one knows the size of his bank account, and when he rides down to business in the morning, the conductor of the trolley holds the car for him.

His fellow-passengers are delighted to get a favoring nod from him. When he sails into the new office building, the elevator captain gives him a cheery but deferential good morning. In his private office he sits at a $500 roll top desk from Grand Rapids, surrounded by push buttons, and when he gives the word some one is expected to hop. At noon he goes to his club for luncheon. The head waiter jumps over two chairs to get at him to relieve him of his hat and then leads him to the most desirable table, and hovers over him even as a mother hen broods over her first born.

The distinguished citizen director of the First National bank, trustee of the cemetery association, member of the advisory committee of the Y.M.C.A. president of the Saturday night poker club, head of the Commercial club, and founder of the Wilson County Trotting association, is a whale when he is seated on his private throne in the corn belt. He rides the whirlwind and commands the storm. The local paper speaks of him in bated capital letters, and he would be more or less than human if he failed to believe that he was a very large gun.

Take this same business Behemoth and set him down in Paris or Rome or Naples. With a red guide book clutched helplessly in his left hand, and his right hand free so that he can dig up the currency of the realm every thirty seconds, he sets forth to become acquainted with mediæval architecture, and the work of the old masters. He is just as helpless and apprehensive as a country boy at Coney Island. The guides and cabmen bullyrag him. Newsboys and beggars poster him with impunity. Children in the streets stop to laugh at his Kansas City fedora. When he goes into a shop the polite brigand behind the showcase charges him two prices and gives him bad money for change.

Why? Because he is in a strange man's town, stripped of his local importance and battling with a foreign language. The man who cannot talk back immediately becomes a weakling.

What is the chief terror to travel? It is the loneliness of feeling that one cannot adapt himself to the unfamiliar background and is therefore sure to attract more or less attention as a curio. And in what city does this feeling of loneliness become most overwhelming? In London.

The American must go to England in order to learn for a dead certainty that he does not speak the English language. On the continent if he kicks on the charges and carries a great deal of luggage and his clothes do not fit him any too well he may be mistaken for an Englishman. This great joy never awaits him in London.

I do not wish to talk about myself, yet I can say in truthfulness that I have been working for years to enrich the English language. Most of the time I have been years ahead of the dictionaries. I have been so far ahead of the dictionaries that sometimes I fear they will never catch up. It has been my privilege to use words that are unknown to Lindley Murray. Andrew Lang once started to read my works, and then sank with a bubbling cry and did not come up for three days. It seems that in my efforts to enrich the English language I made it too rich, and the result was mental gastritis. In one of my fables, written in pure and undefiled Chicago, reference was made to that kind of a table d'hôte restaurant which serves an Italian dinner for sixty cents. This restaurant was called a "spaghett joint." Mr. Lang declared that the appellation was altogether preposterous, as it is a well-known fact that spaghetti has no joints, being invertebrate and quite devoid of osseous tissue, the same as a caterpillar. Also he thought that "cinch" was merely a mis-spelling of "sink" something to do with a kitchen. Now if an American reeking with the sweet vernacular of his native land cannot make himself understood by one who is familiar with all the ins and outs of our language, what chance has he with the ordinary Londoner, who gets his vocabulary from reading the advertisements carried by sandwich men.

FOSTER'S FORECAST

Washington, Mar. 17.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbances to cross the continent 13 to 17, warm wave 12 to 16, cool wave, 15 to 19. Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about 20, cross west of Rockies by close of 21, great central valleys 22 to 24, eastern states 25. Warm wave will cross west of Rockies about 20, great central valleys 22, eastern states, 24. Cool wave will cross west of Rockies about 23, great central valley 25, eastern states 27. This disturbance will be one of the most severe of the month. It will come at the close of a long period of unusually high temperatures and dry weather that will be followed by cool wet weather that will carry the frost line far southward. Precipitation will largely increase over that of the preceding two weeks.

At the close of March 23 inclinations will seem to assure an early opening of spring crop weather, but a setback will come and the legendary last of March winter, that kills the old cow, will kill the hopes for an early spring.

Better not be in a hurry to plant seeds of tender plants not to place tender plants outdoors, for the cold snap, following this disturbance, will throw a cold wet blanket over the early gardener and farmer.

About and immediately following March 17 will come a cold period, but not very severe, not much precipitation and of very short duration. The warm wave following will bring high temperatures.

The disturbance described in this bulletin will be the equinoctial storm which orthodox scientists persist in not understanding. These equinoctial disturbances come within a week of March 21, the dates being controlled by other causes than the earth's equinox. When these other causes are absent the equinoctial storms are absent.

Orthodox scientists cannot get it through their thick craniums that all the spheres of the solar system have their electrical effect on the weather changes. Their investigations of planetary meteorology has been confined to Jupiter and our moon, and therefore they have failed to find the key to the weather changes.

Any investigation of this most difficult problem must fail that does not consider the combined effects of sun, moon, earth and the other seven major planets. It is like a vault with many keys, all of which must be present before the door can be opened. The solar system is a wonderful machine.

—The new electric apparatus for opening the doors of the horse stalls at the fire hall, is now in operation. It is one of the best systems in use at the present day. It is operated by pressing an electric button, which with the aid of an electric coil, releases a small weight, which drops and in turn releases a lever, which by springs pulls a wire and releases the catch on the doors, and they spring open. The electric button arrangement is only temporary until the alarm system is installed throughout the city, when the whole thing, the ringing of the alarm bell, and the releasing of the doors will be done by merely pushing a button in an alarm box, in any part of the city.

PRESENTATION.

At the Liberal Club rooms last evening, Hon. Dr. Roy was presented with a gold-headed cane and a handsomely illuminated address by the members of the Edmonton Liberal Association and the Young Men's Liberal Club. A large gathering of the members were present. The presentation was made by Alex. May, who was chairman of the evening, and the address was read by Secretary P. E. Lessard. Hon. Dr. Roy replied in a most fitting manner. Addresses were delivered by Hon. Peter Talbot, Hon. C. W. Cross, J. R. Boyle, Alex. May and George McLeod, president of the Young Men's Liberal Club. The male quartette of the club under the leadership of Howard Stutchbury, sang, and Mr. Dr. Roy is one of the pioneers of Liberalism in Alberta, is a past president of the Liberal Association, and was the first president of the Young Men's Liberal Club of Edmonton. The cane presented to him bears the following inscription: "Presented to the Hon. Senator Roy, by the Edmonton Liberal Association, March 20th, 1906. Following is the text of the address:

To the Hon. Philippe Roy, Esq., M.D., one of the Senators for the Province of Alberta.

"Sir: The Edmonton Liberal Association wish to express to you the deep sense of satisfaction which its members feel in your appointment to the Senate of Canada, and their confidence that as a member of that body you will do credit not only to yourself, but also to the city in which you reside and will render valuable service as well to Canada at large as to the Province of Alberta.

"They venture to offer you their heartfelt congratulations, and hope that you will long be spared to perform the duties to which you have been called.

Signed on behalf of the Edmonton Liberal Association.
A. E. MAY,
1st Vice-President,
P. E. LESSARD,
Secretary.

TIME LIMIT PREVENTS VOTE

of the future or shutting up shop with the city engineer still smiling. Ald. Mays moved and Ald. Latta seconded, that the time be extended fifteen minutes. The division showed the sentiment on the city engineer's side. Ald. Mays, Latta, Griestbach, Manson and Smith voted for extending the time. Aldermen Bellamy and Picard voted against.

As it requires a unanimous vote to extend the time, the mayor notified the council that in thirty seconds they would be out of business for another week. Ald. Picard surreptitiously peeped at his watch and Ald. Bellamy leaned back waiting for the half minute to elapse, but Ald. Mays grabbed the fleeting moment and shoved a notice of motion into it.

"I give notice," he said, "of a motion to reconsider my report on the White-man contract." If the mayor's watch was right—which the constitution presupposes it always is—Ald. Mays had just three seconds and a quarter left when he got his notice of motion nicely wedged in.

Ald. Bellamy started to raise a point of order, inquiring whether a matter like that could be reconsidered without the consent of the parties who defeated it, but the mayor clicked the gaveling case of his Ducker-Hampton and the stuff was off.

Next week, according to Ald. Mays' figuring, the city engineer's case will come up in the regular order of business under the head of reports, (instead of new business), which comes right after communications, so that unless some one sends the city a Century Dictionary and Commissioner Kinnaird insists on reading it, there is every probability that the city engineer's case will be reached some time previous to 11 p.m. on Tuesday evening, March 27, 1906.
